MODEL PAPER - 3

A pioneering scheme has been started recently in Southampton on England's south coast to educate motorists who have been convicted of drunken driving.

The penalty for drunken driving might be the loss of a driving license and a heavy fine. But under the new scheme, convicted drivers do not pay the fine. Instead they have to attend eight training sessions one week-organized by the local authority probation service. Designed to demonstrate the damage alcohol can do, the scheme was devised by senior probation officer John Cook. He said about a quarter of the people who came to him had a drink problem, but had not realized how much they were drinking one way of getting the message across was to make the drivers pour out their usual ration of alcohol- and then measure it.

Al most every one pours out not a single measure but a double at least- an example of how easy it is to have more than "just one drink" and to encourage other people to do the same. The instructors on the course are giving clinical evidence of the effects of alcohol on the body and brain. The sober truth is that drink badly affects driving skills, although the drinker might like to believe other wise.

Even through dark glasses the snow was blinding while a fierce wind tore at him and cut like a knife through his clothing. The cold was terrifying. It worried him very much for his feet had lost all feeling in his heavy boots and he knew that in this high place, he and his companion might lose their toes from frost-bite.
