MODEL PAPER - 12

At a time when we are enjoying longer, more healthful lives, ominous headlines announce researchers tie aluminum to Alzheimer's disease and coffee linked to cholesterol rise. As a result of a alarming and some times ambiguous bulletins, minor health worries often become major threats, and speculations about disease prevention become 'proven' cures. Part of the problem is that the media often trumpet questionable research findings as major medical break-through. In 1985, three French scientists told reporters at a press conference that the drug cyclosporine appeared to halt the growth of the AIDS virus. They based the announcement on their observation of two AIDS patients treated for eight days. Never mind that no actual study had been done; for the media, the announcement was enough, and the story became front-page news around the world. Unfortunately, one of the patients died within days. Cyclosporine was no miracle cure.

passage

It is difficult to reconcile the ideas of different schools of thought on the question of education. Some people maintain that pupils at school should concentrate on a narrow range of subjects which will benefit them directly in their subsequent careers. Others contend that they should study a wide range of subjects so that they have not only the specialized knowledge necessary for their chosen careers but also sound general knowledge about the world they will have to work and live in. Supporters of the first theory state that the greatest contributions to civilization are made by those who are most expert in their trade or profession. Those on the other side say that, unless they have a broad general education, the experts will be too narrow in their outlook to have sympathy with their fellows or a proper sense of responsibility towards humanity as a whole.

- 32 Broad general knowledge is necessary because
 1. it broadens one's outlook
 2. it teaches us about different things
 3. Without it no one would get a job.
 4. Specialization is incomplete with out it.

- 33 Supporters of the first theory say that
 - 1 expert have contributed most to progress in the modern world.
 - 2 experts have done nothing to help mankind.
 - 3 people with general knowledge are more useful than experts.
 - 4 people with general knowledge have contributed to civilization.

- 34 'Schools of thought' can be explained as
 - 1 groups of people who are schooled to think
 - 2 groups of people whose job is to think
 - 3 groups of people having the same ideas but with different perception on a particular subject.
 - 4 group of people who study in a particular school thoughtfully

- 35 The idea of the first school of thought in the passage is that
 - 1students should study a few subjects that will help them in their profession
 - 2students should study all the subjects they want to
 - 3students should not undertake any specialized work.
 - 4students should concentrate on studies.

- 36 According to the second school of thought education will not be very effective if pupils
 - 1 has nothing but general knowledge
 - 2 ignore the study of fine artss
 - 3 do not have a wide general education
 - 4 have inadequate knowledge of their own work.

Passage

One of the most mysterious, best-preserved, least known and most remarkable archaeological spectacles in the world is the immense complex of geometrical symbols, giant ground-drawings of birds and animals, and hundreds of long, ruler-straight lines, some right across mountains, which stretch over 1200 square miles of the table lands at Nazca. It was first revealed to modern eyes in 1926 when three explores looked down on the desert from a hillside at dusk and briefly saw a Nazca line highlighted by the low slanting rays of the sun. But it was not until the Peruvian air force took aerial photographs in the 1940s that the full magnificence of the panorama was apparent. It was as if a dozen deserted airports were spread out across the plains. Hundreds of what looked like 'landing strips' for air craft were revealed. Among the many abstract patterns were giant spiders, a monkey, a shark, reptiles and flowers, all drawn on the ground on a huge scale?

34. The ' remarkable archaeological spectacles ' described in the passage are

- 1) Geometrical symbols 3) Nazca table lands
2) Huge ground drawings 4) deserted airports

35. The initial view of the spectacle was not clear because

- 1) It was seen from a hillside 3) it was seen in the evening
2) It was seen from aircrafts 4) it was offset by rays of the sun.

36. The aerial photographs

- 1) Failed to reveal anything significant about the spectacle
2) Revealed a distorted view of the spectacle
3) Revealed as much as was already known about the spectacle
4) Revealed the full magnificence of the spectacle

37. In the passage, the spectacle has been compared with

- 1) Out-of -use airports 3) tablelands
2) Animals and flowers 4) hills and mountains

38. The spectacle presented abstract images of

- 1) Human beings 3) landing strips
2) Hills and mountains 4) birds, animals and flowers

Passage

There are some men who seem to be, always on the look out for trouble and to tell the truth, they are seldom disappointed. Listening to such men one would think that his world is one of the stormiest and most disagreeable places. Yet, after all it is not such a bad place and the difficulty is often in the man who is too thin-skinned. On the other hand, the man who goes about expecting people to be like him self, kind and brotherly, will be surprised at the kindness he meets even in the most unlikely quarters. A smile is apt to be met with a responsive smile while the sneer is just as apt to provoke a snarl. Men living in the same neighborhood may live vastly different lives. But it is not the neighborhood which is quarrelsome, but the man within us. And we have it in our power to change our neighborhood in to a pleasant one by simply changing our own ways.
